

MC1 is happy and loves everything. MC 2 is cynical and “whatever”

For the Longest Time

MC1: What a great love song, didn't you just love it? I just loved it! And you know what, it's a doo-wop song!

MC2: Do what?

MC1: Doo Wop! It's a style of music that got real popular in the 1950's and 60's. You know, before electricity!

MC2: So why did we have to sing some old-fashioned song about love? It's not like we're... old!

MC1: It's not old fashioned, it's... vintage. And actually, that song is by Billy Joel from 1984. We had electricity by then! And what's wrong with a love song?

MC2: I am not into old vintage love songs.

MC1: Oooo, that's so sad, you gotta broken heart?

MC2: No!

MC1: Then what's wrong with trying different kinds of music? Even if they are about luuuuvveeee. Didn't you have fun singing all the harmonies? And the oo ah oo ah's?

MC2: Alright, sure, it was kinda fun.

MC1: See?! You just gotta be open to new things, new music, new people!

MC2: I dunno, this seems way too hard.

MC1: It's not! Trust me!

MC2: OK, I'll try to be open. But can we sing something like from this century?

MC1: Sure! I remember this one from when I was just a kid!

MC2: Really? A kid song?

MC1: You said you'll try to be open to new things, now's your chance! You just gotta

Whole Chorus:

TRY EVERYTHING
